[Text] We are publishing the draft law which the Presidium of the People's Assembly will be presenting for examination and approval by the People's Assembly in its ordinary session on 12 November 1990.

On the basis of Article 67 of the Constitution, the People's Assembly resolves:

CHAPTER I

General Provisions

Article 1

Elections for People's Assembly deputies will take place on the basis of general, equal, direct and secret vote on the basis of the free will of the voters.

Any pressure or any other form of compulsion which prevents the free expression of the will of the citizens during the exercise of the right to vote is denounced in accordance with the legal provisions in force.

Article 2

Albanian citizens who have reached the age of 18 as of the date of the elections have the right to participate in the elections and to elect deputies to the People's Assembly.

Citizens whose right to vote has been taken away from them by court decision because they have committed a crime, persons who are judged to be mentally incompetent by a court, persons who are under a sentence of deprivation of freedom, and persons arrested by court decision or with the approval of the prosecutor will not be allowed to vote.

CHAPTER II

Lists of Voters

Article 3

The elections take place on the basis of lists of voters.

On the lists of voters are registered all citizens who have the right to vote and who live (permanently or temporarily) in the territory of a people's council at the time that the lists are drawn up.

Each citizen is registered on only one voter list.

Article 4

The lists of voters are drawn up for each voting center according to a specified form. In the cities, they are compiled by the executive committees of the peoples councils of the cities or by the peoples councils of the cities which do not have executive committees; in the cities which are divided into sectors [lagje], they are drawn up by the peoples councils of the sectors and in the villages, by the peoples councils of the villages.

The lists of voters are announced by the executive committees or by the peoples councils which have compiled them, no later than 20 days before the elections.

Article 5

The lists of voters who serve and live in military units and detachments are compiled and announced by their commands. All other soldiers are registered on the lists of voters in their residence compiled by the [appropriate executive committees or peoples councils].

Article 6

When a voter changes his residence after the list of voters is published and before election day, at his request, the executive committee or the peoples council which has announced the list issues a "voting certificate" and writes the word "moved" on the list of voters.

The voter is registered on the list of voters in his new residence (permanent or temporary) by presenting the "voting certificate" together with his identification card or any other document which replaces it.

In each voting center no more than one-fifteenth of the registered voters can vote on the basis of voting certificates.

The lists of voters for Albanian citizens living outside the country are compiled in the manner established by the Central Elections Commission.

Article 7

The organ which announced the lists of voters, by decision, can make changes in these lists even on election day, but, in any case, before the voting begins, when a citizen has died, is registered twice, is not registered, does not have a right to vote or is outside the territory of the People's Socialist Republic of Albania.

Article 8

Each citizen has the right to request the correction of errors and omissions in the voters' lists such as lack of registration, removal from the list, changes in surname or first name, registration of persons who have lost the right to vote, etc. The request is made to the organ which announced the lists, which is obliged to review it within two days and to issue the appropriate decision.

The decision can be appealed in the district court which, within three days, in the presence of the person making the complaint and a representative of the organ which announced the lists, reviews the complaint in open judicial session and issues the appropriate decision. b) When exported—from the time the proposal for letting the goods pass is submitted to a customhouse until the time the goods cross the state border or as long as the goods, which were permitted to enter blocked circulation abroad, are not reimported to this country or as long as a customhouse does not permit the goods to enter free circulation abroad.

1. Within the framework of customs inspection, members of the Customs Administration are empowered to perform body searches in the event there is cause to suspect that an individual may be concealing goods on his or her person while crossing the state border.

2. A body search may not be undertaken until such times as the demand by members of the Customs Administration that the suspicious person hand over the concealed goods has produced no results.

Section 28

Section 29

A customs bond is understood to be the securing of goods in transport media, containers, packages, and rooms by the affixing of wax or wire seals, markings, or other means to make it impossible to remove goods from them or to insert goods into them without showing traces of the fact that the secured room has been broken into or that the customs closure has been damaged.

Section 30a

Customs Statistics

Organs of the Customs Administration shall assure the collection of data and the processing of information regarding exports and imports of goods on the basis of documents which have been prescribed for use in customs proceedings. 2. The Federal Ministry of Foreign Trade, together with the Federal Ministry of Transportation and the Federal

Ministry of Communications, shall issue a proclamation setting forth the details of the procedures to be observed by organizations during customs control of goods shipped by transport organizations and the postal authorities, as well as details regarding the equipment of installations intended for the transportation or storage of goods subject to customs control, and rooms and areas required for the conduct of customs control.

Section 37

2. Transport organizations shall, in agreement with the appropriate Customs Directorate, stipulate the necessary waiting time for transport media engaged in regular passenger and freight transportation at the customs crossing point to facilitate the execution of customs control.
3. Customhouses are not responsible for damage caused by delaying the transport medium as a result of customs control.

Section 38

Customhouses shall control whether shipping organizations and the postal authorities are fulfilling their duties according to this law and the regulations issued as a result of it during the transportation of goods from abroad or to a foreign country.

CHAPTER FIVE

Section 43 Contractual Customs Duties

1. Contractual customs duties are collected on merchandise in cases which are stipulated in international agreements regarding the mutual rendering of customs advantages.

2. The Federal Ministry of Foreign Trade, in agreement with the Federal Ministry of Finances and the Federal Ministry of Foreign Affairs, may stipulate that contractual customs duties be collected even for goods originating in a country with which an agreement on the mutual rendition of customs advantages has not been concluded.

Section 44 Exemption From Customs Duties

1. Goods which are exempt from customs inspection upon import or export are exempt from customs duties, as are goods where such an exemption is required by the public interest.

2. The Federal Ministry of Foreign Trade, in agreement with the Federal Ministry of Finances and the Federal Ministry of Foreign Affairs, shall stipulate, by proclamation, those cases where goods are exempt from customs duties, as well as the conditions according to which the goods were exempt from customs duties.

3. If a country does not exempt goods imported from the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic from customs duties commensurate with the extent stipulated by the proclamation of the Federal Ministry of Foreign Trade, then the Federal Ministry of Foreign Trade may limit or reject the exemption of customs duties on goods imported from that country.

Section 45 Retaliatory Customs Duties

The Government of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic may, for reasons of economic reprisal, stipulate that, for a temporary period, imports of goods from countries which discriminate against the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic in economic relationships be charged a surcharge on top of the standard customs rates or, possibly, introduce special customs rates for goods which are not subject to customs duties according to the customs table.

Part Two Entitlement of the State to Customs DutiesSection 46 Origin of the Entitlement of the State to Customs Duties

The entitlement of the state to customs duties originates at the moment goods are under customs control.

Section 47 Assessment of Customs Duties

1. Customs duties are assessed according to the status of the goods and the regulations applicable on the day which marks the beginning of the time the goods are under customs control.

2. In the event goods have escaped customs control, customs duties are assessed in accordance with the status of the goods and resolutions valid at the time the goods were transported across the state border. If it is not possible to ascertain when the goods were transported across the state border, customs duties are assessed according to the status of the goods and regulations valid at the time it was determined that the goods were removed from customs control.

3. When goods are permitted to pass into the circulation of record, it is possible to fully or partially exempt goods from import duties.

4. In the event goods, permitted to enter the circulation of record abroad, undergo a change in value as a result of processing, adjustment, or repair, duties are assessed upon the reimport of the goods based on the added value resulting from their processing, adjustment, or repair.

5. In the event goods, permitted to enter the domestic circulation of record, are subject to change with respect to their value as a result of temporary use, the customs duties assessed as a result of reexport of the goods will be based on their lowered value.

6. In the event customs duties are assessed on goods in accordance with their value and in the event a participant in a customs proceeding fails to document this value or makes statements which do not reflect the actual price of the goods, a customhouse shall assess customs duties in accordance with the international treaty by which the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic is bound. The costs of this proceeding are to be borne by a participant in a customs proceeding.

7. The Federal Ministry of Foreign Trade, in agreement with the appropriate central organs, shall stipulate, by proclamation, the detailed adjustments pertaining to the assessment of customs duties, pertaining to the collection of customs duties on goods permitted to enter the circulation of record, as well as cases where the assessed duties may be collected by the postal authorities.

2. The Federal Ministry of Foreign Trade, in agreement with the Federal Ministry of Finances, shall stipulate, by proclamation, the level of interest chargeable for deferring customs payments and for late customs payments, as well as the conditions and time period permitted for the deferral of payments.

Section 50 Obligations To Pay Customs Duties

1. A participant in a customs proceeding, to whom goods subject to customs duties have been released, is obligated to pay customs duties.

2. A participant in a customs proceeding is obligated to make supplemental payments of customs duties at the level of duty concessions made, if, after the goods have been released to enter limited free circulation, he fails to fulfill the duties stipulated by a customhouse or in the event that customhouse, at his suggestion, rescinds the conditions according to which the goods were released to enter limited free circulation.

3. Customs duties shall be paid together with and the same as a participant in a customs proceeding by anyone who:

a) Imports or exports goods in conflict with this law and participates in the unpermitted import or export of goods.

b) Handles goods in conflict with this law.

c) Acquires goods on which customs duties were not paid during their import or export.

4. Anyone who acquires goods from anyone else on which customs duties were not paid during import or export is obligated to pay customs duties only to the extent that he knew or had to know that the goods had escaped customs control or that the goods have been unjustifiably misappropriated.

Section 51 Customs Lien Law

1. Pending the payment of customs duties, imported, exported, or transit-shipped goods are subject to the customs lien law, to the extent to which they are in the possession of a customhouse, a shipping organization, the postal authorities, or in the possession of the person obligated to pay customs duties. This does not apply to goods which are classified as national property.

2. The customs lien law pertaining to goods ends with the termination of the state entitlement to collect customs duties.

Section 52 Customs Duty Deposits

1. To make sure that imported, exported, or transit-shipped goods will not be taken away from customs control or that goods under customs control will not be handled in conflict with this law, a customhouse may require the deposit of a customs duty deposit.

2. A customhouse is entitled to require the deposit of a customs duty surety, in the case of imports, up to the level of the import duties plus 10 percent as well as the deposit of other taxes and payments collectible upon the importation and export of goods up to the level of the customs duty or based on the price of the goods involved. In the case of goods the export of which is prohibited or restricted, a customs duty surety payment may be demanded and can be up to five times the actual level of the customs duty or the price of the goods involved.

3. In the event a participant in a customs proceeding fails to adhere to the duties stipulated in the customs proceeding, the deposited customs surety is used to pay the customs duties, to pay transportation costs, warehousing costs, postal fees, fines assigned according to this law, and the costs of the proceeding. Any remainder of the deposited customs surety is then returned to a participant in the customs proceeding.

Section 53 Expiration of the State's Entitlement To Collect Customs Duties

The state's entitlement to customs duties expires:

a) upon their payment.

b) upon their being forgiven.

c) upon their being settled from the proceeds of the sale of the goods involved.

e) upon surrender of the goods to the state;

f) upon forfeiture of the goods to benefit the state;

g) upon confiscation of the goods.

Section 54 Forgiveness of Customs Duties and Reduction of Customs Duties

1. In the event payment of customs duties would lead to hardships, the customs duties must be completely or partially forgiven.

2. A customhouse shall make decisions regarding the forgiveness or reduction of customs duties.

3. The Federal Ministry of Foreign Trade, in agreement with the Federal Ministry of Finances, shall stipulate, by proclamation, the details regarding forgiveness or reduction of customs duties.

Section 55 Failure To Enforce Rights

1. The customs duties (or any surcharges) may not be assessed or collected after the expiration of three years from the end of the calendar year in which an entitlement to collect customs duties came into being.

2. In the event goods escaped customs control or in the event goods were handled in conflict with the conditions under which they were released, it is neither possible to assess nor collect customs duties (surcharges) after the expiration of five years from the end of the calendar year in which the entitlement to collect customs duties originated.

3. The end of the calendar year in which a participant in a customs proceeding was notified of an action designed to collect customs duties (surcharges) or in which he was permitted to defer the payment of customs duties (surcharges) marks the beginning of a new three-year term. However, neither customs duties (surcharges) may be assessed or collected if 10 years have passed since the end of the calendar year in which the entitlement to collect customs duties came into being.

4. An action designed to collect customs duties (surcharges) is also a written reminder to pay customs duties, delivered to a participant.

Refunding of Customs Duties

Section 56

1. A customhouse shall refund customs duties in the event they were paid by a person not obligated to do so.

2. A customhouse will also refund paid customs duties in the event the export of goods released to free circulation abroad does not take place.

3. A customhouse shall return any excess payments in the event more was paid in customs duties than was owed.

4. A customhouse may return import duties in the event goods which were released for free circulation within the country are reexported in an unchanged status within one year from the end of the calendar year in which they were imported.

5. A customhouse may return export duties if the goods which were released into free circulation abroad are reimported in an unchanged status within one year from the end of the calendar year in which they were exported.

Section 57

1. If the customs duty (surcharge) does not exceed 10 Czech korunas [Kcs], a customhouse will not refund it.

2. The participant's entitlement to a refund of customs duties (excess payments) is extinguished if it has not been asserted by the end of the third calendar year following the year in which the entitlement came into being.

CHAPTER SIX

2. The agent of a participant in a customs proceeding shall prove, on the basis of a power of attorney, that he is empowered to represent a participant in a customs proceeding.

3. If a transport organization or the postal service is engaged in shipping goods which are to be subjected to a customs proceeding, these organizations are authorized to undertake the actions necessary for a customs proceeding, provided these actions are not implemented by a participant in a customs proceeding.

Section 66 Proposal To Hold a Customs Proceeding

1. A proposal to hold a customs proceeding is generally submitted in writing. The participant in a customs proceeding is responsible for the correctness of the data appearing in the proposal to hold a customs proceeding. The written proposal to hold a customs proceeding must always be signed by an authorized person.

2. A proposal to hold a customs proceeding must be accompanied by the stipulated documents.

3. The participant in a customs proceeding is entitled to acquire the data necessary for a proposal to hold a customs proceeding by examining the goods under customs supervision.

4. The participant in a customs proceeding may alter a proposal to hold a customs proceeding up to the time the customs examination is initiated. In the course of the customs examination and until the termination of the customs proceeding, the proposal may be altered only in the event the goods involved are to be released to free or restricted circulation or for reimport or reexport.

5. Details regarding the form, content, and substance of a proposal to hold a customs proceeding are stipulated, in the form of a proclamation, by the Federal Ministry of Foreign Trade.

Section 67

Procedures Involved in a Customs Proceeding

1. A participant in a customs proceeding is obligated to present goods for purposes of a customs proceeding, to provide the necessary explanations, and to prepare the goods for customs inspection.

2. In proposing that a customs proceeding be held, a participant in such a proceeding is obligated to notify a customhouse accurately with regard to the imported, exported, or transit-shipped goods and provide all complete details necessary to judge whether the goods may be released to the proposed area of circulation.

3. The Federal Ministry of Foreign Trade shall stipulate, by proclamation, when a customhouse may waive the requirement to present a proposal for a customs proceeding.

Section 68

1. A customs proceeding is conducted with the participation of a participant in a customs proceeding.

2. Without the participation of a participant in a customs proceeding, a customs proceeding may nevertheless be held if a participant in a customs proceeding refuses to participate or if his whereabouts are not known or if there is a danger of delay.

Rulings in Customs Proceedings

Section 69

1. A ruling in a customs proceeding contains particularly the following:

a) A statement as to whether the goods are to be released or not.

b) Conditions under which the goods are released to blocked circulation or conditional free circulation.

c) Information regarding further steps in the event a customhouse does not release the goods.

2. With respect to goods subject to the payment of customs duties, the ruling in a customs proceeding sets the level of the customs duty to be paid and possibly includes a statement indicating that the goods are being released without the imposition of customs duties.

Section 69a

1. A ruling in a customs proceeding shall contain the facts on the basis of which the goods are being released. If not stipulated otherwise, the ruling in a customs proceeding need not be filled out and forwarded in writing. The statement pertaining to the ruling may be noted in the shipping and accompanying documents or on the written proposal to hold a customs proceeding or may be communicated orally.

2. A ruling which does not release goods into the proposed area of circulation and a ruling regarding release of goods to a restricted free area of circulation is made in writing and communicated by delivery of the written ruling.

3. A ruling which is communicated orally or the statement of which is noted in shipping and accompanying documents may not contain conditions which are binding upon a participant of a customs proceeding in the future, with the exception of those conditions which stem directly from the generally binding legal regulations.

4. If the statement on the ruling in a customs proceeding confirms the proposal to hold a customs proceeding which has been submitted in writing, then the contents of this proposal and the actual facts according to which the goods are to be released become part of the decision.

5. The rulings listed in Paragraph 3 above are not subject to the provisions of general regulations on administrative proceedings which adjust the substance of decisions, notifications, and means of rectification (Law No. 71/1967 Sb. regarding administrative proceedings).

Section 70 Handling of Goods

At the request of a participant in a customs proceeding, a customhouse may permit the goods to be handled even prior to the decision on their release. A customhouse will always acquiesce to the request if the reason for not releasing the goods is merely the necessity to determine the origin of the goods, the location of dispatch, the tariff category, or the customs value of the goods involved.

Section 71 Entitlements and Obligations Resulting From a Customs Proceeding

1. The agent of a participant in a customs proceeding is responsible for fulfilling the obligations resulting from the customs proceeding all the way through the notification of the decision and delivery of the goods to a participant in a customs proceeding.

2. At the proposal of a participant in a customs proceeding, a customhouse may permit a third person to wholly or partially take on the rights and obligations resulting from release of the goods for export, import, or transit shipment.

Section 72 Rescission of Rulings

If goods have been released to enter a free or blocked area of circulation abroad, a customhouse shall, at the proposal of a participant in a customs proceeding, rescind the issued ruling if the goods have not yet crossed the state border. Prior to making this decision, a customhouse may demand that the goods and the required documents be submitted to it.

Inadequate Cooperation on the Part of a Participant in a Customs Proceeding

Section 73

1. In the event a participant in a customs proceeding does not submit a proposal to hold a customs proceeding within two days following the presentation of the goods to a customhouse, a customhouse may store the goods according to Section 80 at his expense and risk or make other provisions to prevent the unauthorized handling of the goods.

2. If the proposal to hold a customs proceeding is not complete or if the participant in a customs proceeding does not present the necessary documents or fails to provide the required explanations, a customhouse will challenge him to augment his proposal for a customs proceeding or to provide the necessary documents or to provide the required explanations by a deadline which it establishes at the time.

3. Failure by a participant in a customs proceeding to heed the challenge shall cause a customhouse to reject the proposal to hold a customs proceeding and to handle the goods as described in Paragraph 1 above.

Section 74

1. If, after expiration of the deadlines listed in Section 73, Paragraphs 1 and 2, above, a proper proposal to hold a customs proceeding has not been received for an additional three days with respect to goods subject to rapid spoilage or within an additional 30 days, a customhouse may sell the goods. In accomplishing the sale, it shall proceed in accordance with Sections 107 and 109 of this law.

2. If the goods have a greater value and are not subject to rapid spoilage, a customhouse is obligated to notify a participant in a customs proceeding of the intended sale in a timely manner.

3. A customhouse may grant a participant in a customs proceeding an appropriate amount of additional time to submit a proposal for a customs proceeding, to augment this proposal, to submit the necessary documents, or to provide the required explanations.

1. The customhouse shall determine whether to conduct customs control by checking the documents and records or by checking shipping lists and accompanying manifests or by customs examination.

2. A customs examination may be conducted with respect to any goods subject to customs control as long as this proclamation or an international treaty by which the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic is bound does not stipulate otherwise.

An internal examination checks on the type, quantity, and possibly the quality of the goods involved.

5. A participant in a customs proceeding has no influence upon the extent of the customs examination. However, a participant in a customs proceeding may propose that the customs office conduct a complete external or complete internal customs examination if by so doing the remainder of a customs proceeding may be facilitated.

7. For purposes of conducting customs inspections, organs of the Customs Administration are authorized to utilize technical as well as other means, including service dogs.

Section 2 The Red-Green System

1. The red-green system constitutes a special method for the conduct of customs control which can be used at customs airfields and customs highway crossing points.

The green stripe is intended for those travelers who are not in possession of goods subject to customs duties or who only have goods in their possession which are exempt from customs duties and whose goods, which they are importing or exporting, are not subject to import or export prohibitions and restrictions; at the same time, conditions for the import and export of values regulated by a foreign exchange law (Foreign Exchange Law 528/1990 Collection of Laws [Sb.]) must be fulfilled. The red stripe is reserved for other travelers.

3. The green stripe must bear a green mark in the shape of an octagon with the inscription: "Nothing to declare."

4. The red stripe must bear a red mark in the form of a square with the inscription: "Dutiable goods."

(Augments Section 36, Paragraph 2, of the Law)

Section 8

1. For purposes of customs control, a shipper is obligated to present the border customs office with two copies of a freight manifest, the listing of baggage, the listing of supplies, the listing of inventory organic to the transport medium, and other documents dealing with the goods being shipped. The customs office may accept these documents via an installation for the transmission and processing of data using information carrier facilities; the type of goods may be expressed here in internationally recognized nomenclature (Announcement by the Minister of Foreign Affairs No. 160/1988 Sb. on the International Agreement Regarding the Harmonized Description and Numerical Marking of Goods and the protocol regarding changes to the agreement).

2. Shippers who ship by water may be required to present vessel drawings.

Section 9

1. The freight manifest shall contain the following data: the country of registry of the transport medium, the type of transport medium, the brand, the location of record and the location at which freight was loaded, the names, domiciles, and seats of individuals dispatching and receiving the goods, the country of destination, the quantity and type of transported goods expressed in units of measure and customary nomenclature in commerce, and, in the event the goods are packaged, also the number of items, markings, and types of packaging of the pieces of freight. With respect to collected consignments, the shipper is obligated to present customs authorities with a listing of the consignment items as made out by the person dispatching them. The customs authorities may stipulate which data need not be contained in the shipping manifest. The postal authorities do not provide a shipping manifest.

2. The listing of baggage shall contain data on the quantity and type of baggage being shipped, the name and domicile of the owner of the baggage. The customs authorities may stipulate the occasions upon which a listing of baggage need not be presented or which data need not be included.

3. The listing of supplies organic to the transport medium contains data on the supply of food, beverages, tobacco products, and other supplies intended for use en route, and possibly also data on the facilities organic to the transport medium, if these are not recorded in the inventory listing.

Section 10

In railroad transportation, the freight manifest is replaced by the railroad train consist listing or the temporary listing must be presented in the event the train is hauling only empty cars which are already included in the railroad car inventory. Railroad cars which are not included in the rolling stock inventory of railroad administrations are recorded in the train consist listing or in the temporary listing, the same as loaded cars. In railroad transportation, the listing of inventory is not required.

Section 11

1. In aviation transportation, the freight manifest contains the name of the operator, the country and registration number of the aircraft, the flight number and date, the station (location) at which freight was loaded, the station (location) where freight is unloaded, the number of the air bill of lading, the number of pieces, types of goods, and an area for operator remarks and for official notations.

2. In aviation transportation, a listing of baggage is not required.

Section 12

The freight manifest, the listing of baggage, the listing of supplies, and the listing of organic inventory is not required if the vessel or aircraft lands for a short period of time for technical reasons, for example, to augment its supplies, to eliminate defects, or to permit travelers to disembark.

Section 13

If exported goods are loaded aboard water or highway transport media near an internal customhouse, the shipper must present that facility with a freight manifest in duplicate; one copy is intended for the internal customs facility, the other for the border customs facility.

Customs Control Aboard Transport Media Used for the Mass Transportation of Passengers Upon Crossing State Borders

(Augments Section 36, Paragraph 2, of the Law)

Section 14

Travelers who are traveling aboard transport media used for the mass transportation of passengers and crew members of such transportation media which are regularly set aside for the transportation of passengers are obligated to present their baggage for customs control in sufficient time so this control may be concluded within the time allotted for such actions.

Section 15

Upon entering this country, a traveler may not leave the transport medium at a border customs facility prior to the conclusion of a customs proceeding and, when going abroad, may leave the transport medium upon conclusion of a customs proceeding only with the approval of the member of the Customs Administration conducting customs control.

Section 16

During the period during which customs proceedings are ongoing, only employees serving aboard transport media and, with the knowledge of a member of the Customs Administration conducting customs control, persons carrying out their official duties at the location may be in the customs area of the border customs facility, in addition to travelers. Other persons may be in the customs area only with the approval of the member of the Customs Administration who is conducting customs control.

Section 17

During the time customs control of a vessel in water transportation is being conducted, any kind of contact with the shore and with other vessels is prohibited; apart from crew members of the vessel, other individuals may board the vessel only in the performance of their official duties and, at that, with the knowledge of the member of the Customs Administration conducting the customs control.

Section 18

If there is a collision or an emergency landing involving a transport medium along a customs route, the shipper is obligated to report this fact to the nearest customs facility without undue delay.

Section 19 Escorting Transport Media

Section 20 Import of Mail Shipments

1. Import of mail shipments may be transported without customs seals.

letters, and braille communications, whose physical form clearly indicates that they contain only written communications.

3. If the content of postal shipments or their parts becomes damaged during shipment within the country prior to being released into free circulation in the country, the post office will handle this fact with the customs authority which has jurisdiction with respect to releasing the shipment.

4. If damage or spoilage to postal shipments was noticed by the postal authorities at which customs proceedings are in progress, that post office, together with the customs authority, will determine the status of such shipments.

5. To the extent to which the post office takes out and destroys spoiled goods which could threaten human life or could damage other shipments, it is obligated to notify the appropriate customs authorities of this fact.

6. To the extent to which the postal service, pursuant to special regulations, sells postal shipments which have been released by the customs authorities into free circulation within the country, it shall use the proceeds of the sale primarily to defray the costs of the sale, to cover postal fees and customs duties and other fees imposed upon the shipments.

7. The postal service may refuse to carry out actions on behalf of the participant in a customs proceeding if it considers it necessary for operational or for other serious reasons or if the participant in a customs proceeding fails to provide the necessary data within the stipulated time limit.

8. Shipments, with respect to which the postal service does not carry out any activities on behalf of the participant in a customs proceeding, shall be turned over to the customs authorities for certification and the turning over is communicated to the addressee. The customs authorities will release such shipments only if the postal authorities certify, in a postal document, that the shipments may be released to the addressee.

9. A shipment, with respect to which the postal authorities have not undertaken any actions on behalf of the participant in a customs proceeding, can be rejected by the addressee, provided he does not open it at the customs facility.

(Augments Section 47, Paragraph 7, of the Law)

Section 21

Duties, taxes, and fees payable on goods imported as part of postal shipments are collected by the postal authorities in one payment from the participant in a customs proceeding at the time the shipment is delivered. Without collection of the customs duties, taxes, and fees, the postal service will only deliver the shipment to a participant in a customs proceeding if the customs authorities have authorized a deferral of the customs duty payment or if the customs authorities themselves have handed down a decision regarding the level of duties, taxes, and fees to be paid by the participant in a customs proceeding or by his agent.

(Augments Section 36, Paragraph 2, of the Law)

Section 22 Returning of Shipments

1. If a shipment is to be returned abroad and if its release into free circulation in this country was being handled by the shipper or by the postal service, the shipper or the postal service is obligated to present the shipment, together with all customs and other documents, to the customs authorities to conduct a customs proceeding.

2. If duties, taxes, and fees were assessed against the goods, the shipper or the postal service shall present the shipment to that customs authority which was instrumental in releasing the shipment into free circulation within the country.

(Augments Section 36, Paragraph 2, of the Law)

Section 23 Export of Postal Shipments

1. Letter mail which contains merchandise in addition to written communications may be mailed by the sender for transportation abroad without having to first present it to the customs authorities, as long as the mail shipment contains only goods, the export of which does not require permission or is not prohibited. The shipment must be accompanied by a customs declaration covering the exported merchandise (in this case, the customs declaration is understood to be the green CI customs label).

2. Letter mail which also contains merchandise, the export of which requires permission or is prohibited, may be posted by the sender for postal transportation abroad after being presented to the customs authorities and after the customs authorities have cleared it for export.

3. Letter mail shipments which are not equipped with a certificate by the customs authorities indicating that they have been released for export are presented by the postal authorities to the internal customs facility for the conduct of customs control prior to crossing the border to go abroad.

Duties of Shippers and the Postal Service

(Augments Section 36, Paragraph 2, of the Law)

Section 24 Actions by Employees of Shippers and the Postal Service

1. In the case of customs proceedings which are conducted upon the proposal of the shipper or the postal service, auxiliary functions are performed by employees of the shipper or of the postal service.

2. Auxiliary operations are considered to be loading, unloading, or transit shipping of goods, delivery of goods to the scales, moving goods to review rooms, the opening and closing of loaded and empty transport media and containers, pieces of freight, unwrapping and rewrapping goods, the attachment of ladders, catwalks, and mobile stairways, free transportation by boat in a riverport, etc.

3. Should the employees of the shipper or the postal service not assist in performing auxiliary work during customs proceedings themselves, the shipper and the postal service are obligated to arrange the carrying out of this work at their own expense, according to instructions issued by the customs authorities.

Section 25 Rooms, Areas, and Aids Necessary to the Performance of a Customs Proceeding

1. If a regular customs proceeding involving imported, exported, or transit-shipped goods is being undertaken within the facilities of the shipper or the postal service, the shipper or the postal service shall ensure that the rooms necessary to perform customs inspection are provided.

2. The rooms and areas necessary to perform a customs proceeding and for the storage of goods shall be located so that the operating procedures used by the customs facilities and organs collaborating with it could be of maximum effectiveness.

3. The methods for closing off the rooms serving the purposes of a customs proceeding and the storage of goods are to be agreed upon by the shipper or by the postal service with the customs authorities.

4. The shipper or the postal service shall maintain such rooms which they have turned over for use to the customs service in appropriate technical and hygienic conditions, shall be responsible for charring, heating, and lighting them in return for compensation of the actual costs incurred by the shipper or the postal service, insofar as special regulations do not state otherwise.

5. The shipper or postal service shall, at their own expense and in agreement with the customs authorities, provide any aids and installations necessary for the conduct of customs proceedings, for example, scales, ladders, mobile stairways, lamps, safety lamps, tools, and proper lighting for customs control areas.

Section 26 Timetables

1. The shipper shall notify the border customs facilities of the timetable of all transport media crossing the state border and announce any change prior to the time the timetable or its changes become effective.

2. The introduction of special trains, aircraft, or other transport media, the cancellation or delay of transport media by more than 30 minutes, shall be announced by the shipper in time and without undue delay to the border customs facility.

3. If, at the border customs facility, an accumulation of transport media in railroad, aviation, or water transportation occurs, the shipper shall determine the sequence of customs control actions. If this occurs at a border customs facility in highway transportation, the sequence shall be determined by the customs facility. It will release, on a priority basis, particularly ambulances carrying people who are ill or injured, transport media and facilities and other objects intended to provide assistance in fighting fires, natural disasters, and similar events, live animals and easily spoiled goods, transport media belonging to individuals enjoying diplomatic or consular privileges and immunities in the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic, and buses in regular transportation.

2. In the event the participant in a customs proceeding requests that a customs proceeding be undertaken outside of the customs area, he must submit his request in sufficient time, must notify the customs facilities regarding the approximate quantity of goods and their type, using customary commercial terminology, and must propose the time such a customs proceeding should be undertaken: a participant in a customs proceeding is obligated to notify the customs facility without undue delay of any other changes in the above data.

The customs facility will undertake a customs proceeding outside of the customs area, provided that, at the time proposed by the participant in a customs proceeding, the necessary documents, goods, and possibly the transport medium in which the goods are being shipped are prepared in such a way that a customs proceeding can be immediately initiated and can be concluded without delay.

13. At the proposal of a participant in a customs proceeding, customs authorities may release goods from blocked circulation for reexport or reimport or enter free circulation. It is also possible to terminate blocked circulation provided a participant in a customs proceeding surrenders the goods to the state or the customs authorities, if regulations regarding the protection of the environment are to be preserved, if a participant gives his approval for the destruction of the goods or approves their depreciation at the expense of a participant in a customs proceeding. The customs authorities may accept the surrendering of goods to the state, provided this does not result in any expenditures for the state other than those connected with the sale of the goods.

Proof of the damage or destruction must be presented to the customs authorities.

2. The waste or remainder which is left following the destruction or depreciation of goods is subject to the same kind of customs duties upon release into free circulation inside Czechoslovakia which the customs authorities would have assessed and collected had such waste or remainder been stored in this condition.

Section 80

If goods stored in customs warehouses have been destroyed or depreciated with the approval of the customs authorities, the operator of a customs warehouse shall make a record of the destruction or depreciation of the goods; one copy of this record is to be presented to the customs authorities.

Section 81

1. Public customs warehouses may be used to store all types of goods, including goods subject to prohibitions and restrictions, provided the prohibitions and restrictions are not imposed for veterinary or plant protection reasons, for reasons of public morality or order, for reasons of public security, health protection, environmental protection, for the protection of items of museum and gallery value, of cultural and national cultural memorabilia having artistic, historic, or archeological value.

2. Public customs warehouses may not be used to also store goods subject to prohibitions and restrictions having to do with the protection of patents, trade marks, and copyrights.

3. The operator of a public customs warehouse is obligated to make a record of the goods which cannot be stored in a public customs warehouse. He shall publish such a listing in a suitable manner; one copy of the listing shall be turned over by the operator to the customs authorities.

Section 82

1. Private customs warehouses may be used to store only goods listed in a customs decision on establishing a customs warehouse. The prohibitions and restrictions listed under Section 81 are also applicable.

2. A private customs warehouse is accessible only to those importers listed in the decision by the customs authorities on establishing a customs warehouse.

CHAPTER SIX

Free Customs Zone

(Augments Section 19, Paragraph 2, of the Law)

Section 83

1. Free customs zones are established particularly in locations which have an advantageous geographic position, such as riverports, airfields, important transport junctions.

2. Goods may be placed in free customs zones without regard to their quantity, origin, place of destination, or location of import, including goods subject to prohibitions and restrictions, provided that such prohibitions and restrictions are not imposed for veterinary reasons, plant protection reasons, for reasons of public morality or public order, for reasons of public safety, health protection, environmental protection, for reasons of protecting items with museum and gallery value, cultural and national cultural memorabilia having historical, artistic, or archeological value, and for purposes of protecting patents, trademarks, and copyrights.

3. Free customs zones may accommodate not only goods which have just been imported from abroad and which are owned by a person who is domiciled or has a seat outside of the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic, but also goods owned by a person who is domiciled or has a seat on the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic.

4. The duration of the time goods may remain in a free customs zone is not restricted.

Section 84

To the extent to which a permit, specified by special regulations, is required for the establishment of a free customs zone, such a permit must be presented at the same time as the proposal to establish such a zone.

Section 85

1. A proposal to establish a free customs zone shall contain data essential to making that decision, and particularly:

a) The title and address of the operator of the free customs zone.

b) The cadastral number of the lot on which the free customs zone is to be established, and the dimensions of that lot.

c) The type of activities which are to be carried out within the free customs zone.

d) The proposed date for the establishment of a free customs zone.

e) The technical conditions governing the free customs zone.

f) The conditions of administration and security of the free customs zone.

g) The conditions having to do with accounting records and inventories of goods.

2. Together with a proposal to establish a free customs zone, it is necessary to present a document certifying the ownership or use rights of the person who has submitted the proposal pertaining to the parcel of land on which the free customs zone is to be established.

3. If the facts listed in the proposal to establish a free customs zone should change during the course of the proceedings designed to permit such an establishment or following the issuance of a permit to establish a free customs zone, the proposing party is obligated to notify the Federal Ministry of Foreign Trade of these changes within 15 days from the day such changes came to that party's attention.

Section 86

1. Dangerous goods, goods which could depreciate other goods or which require special equipment may be located only in areas specially equipped for such purposes.

2. To the extent to which the location of goods listed in Paragraph 1 above requires permission in accordance with special regulations (see Section 75, Paragraph 2, for definition), such a permission must be submitted together with the proposal.

Section 87

1. The area of a free customs zone must be fenced in by a fence which is at least three meters in height.
2. The areas, the entry and exit locations of a free customs zone may be placed under the direct supervision of a member of the Customs Administration.
3. Persons and transport media which enter and leave the free customs zone may be subjected to customs inspection.
4. Entry into a free customs zone will be permitted by customs authorities for persons who have been punished for violating customs regulations.
5. The customs facility in whose territorial circuit the free customs zone is located (hereinafter referred to only as the "customs facility") may check goods which are entering or leaving or goods which are located within the free customs zone. To facilitate such control, the operator of a free customs zone shall maintain records of goods which enter, leave, or are located within the free customs zone, augmented by data prescribed by the customs facility in such a way so that identification of the goods is made possible and an overview of their movement is obtained. The accounting records must be placed at the disposal of the customs facility to facilitate control, as considered necessary by the customs facility. Upon request, the operator of a free customs zone shall provide a copy of shipping and accompanying documents which accompany goods upon entering or leaving the free customs zone to the customs facility.
6. In the event goods are moved within the free customs zone, appropriate documents must be at the disposal of the customs facility.
7. In justified cases, on the basis of a request by the operator of a free customs zone, the customs facility may conduct permanent supervision within the free customs zone. Costs connected therewith are to be borne by the operator of the free customs zone.

Section 88

The operator of a free customs zone is obligated to make a record of goods which are unsuitable for location within a free customs zone and goods whose location in a free customs zone is prohibited. He shall publicize this listing in a suitable manner and provide a copy of the listing to the customs facility.

Section 89

1. The operator of a free customs zone shall make an inventory listing of machines, tools, transport media, and other facilities imported into a free customs zone and intended for the performance of warehousing operations, production activities, and other important actions, office machinery, and other items. The above-listed inventory must make it clear whether the listed inventory was imported into the free customs zone from abroad or transferred from the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic from outside of the free customs zone.

2. The operator of a free customs zone shall notify the customs authorities without undue delay of all changes affecting the quantity of the inventory listed in the inventory listing.

3. The inventory transferred into the free customs zone from territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic located outside the area of the free customs zone which is being transferred back to the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic shall be written off from the inventory listing on the basis of a listing of the inventory being removed, as compiled by the operator of the free customs zone. In the event inventory which is imported into the free customs zone from abroad is transferred to the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic outside of the area of the free customs zone, this inventory is to be released as if it had been imported directly from abroad.

4. The inventory listing shall contain the following:

- a) The name and address of the operator of the free customs zone.
- b) The name and address of the owner of the inventory.
- c) The designation of the customs office undertaking customs control within the free customs zone.
- d) The name and address of the free customs zone.
- e) The sequential number of the inventory listing, beginning each year with number one.
- f) A detailed description (individual nomenclature, type, production number, etc.), quantity, weight, and customs value of the inventory.
- g) A "remarks" column for remarks on various manipulations involving the inventory (for example, export, depreciation under customs supervision).

- h) Columns for signatures and stamps of the operator of a free customs zone and of the customs facility and the date the inventory listing was compiled.

Section 90

1. The export of goods from a free customs zone to a foreign country is conducted on the basis of a listing of the exported goods, compiled by the operator of the free customs zone in triplicate and on the basis of commercial invoices.

2. The export of goods from free customs zones to foreign countries is not subject to the prohibitions and restrictions connected with the crossing of goods across the state border.

3. If goods imported into the free customs zone from abroad are transferred to the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic outside of the area of the free customs zone, they are released as if they had been imported to the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic directly from abroad.

4. Goods and inventory imported into a free customs zone or waste products, as well as secondary products resulting from the process of reworking, modification, or repair of imported goods may, provided regulations for protecting the environment are observed, be destroyed or depreciated on the basis of a request by the operator of a free customs zone with the approval of the owner, under customs supervision. The destruction or depreciation will be recorded by the operator of a free customs zone by making an entry; one copy shall be handed to the customs facility. The destroyed or depreciated items are written off in the appropriate records. Costs connected with destruction or depreciation do not accrue to the state.

Section 91

According to need, but at least once each year, the customs facility will check the goods, means of production, and other inventory imported into a free customs zone according to the prescribed records.

Constitutional Court Ruling on Damage Claims Against Soviets

91CH0417X Budapest MAGYAR KOZLONY
in Hungarian No 26, 15 Dec 90 pp 2440-2444

[Constitutional Court ruling No. 30/1990 AB of 15 December 1990 on damage claims against Soviet troops stationed in Hungary]

[Text]

IN THE NAME OF THE HUNGARIAN REPUBLIC

This is in response to a complaint filed by Istvan Biro, Jr. which raises a constitutional issue, and further, in regard to a petition filed by Debrecen resident, Attorney Dr. Attila Gyorfı, and Ocsa resident Laszlo Barany which seeks after-the-fact judicial review of certain legal provisions [hereinafter summarily: "Complaints," "Complainants"]. At issue are legal provisions governing the enforcement of damage claims against members of Soviet troops stationed in the territory of the Hungarian People's Republic which stem from their actions in the course of performing service related duties [hereinafter: "damages caused by Soviet troops"]. The Constitutional Court issues the following:

RULING

The Constitutional Court rejects the petition filed by Dr. Attila Gyorfı and Laszlo Barany to declare unconstitutional and to annul the provisions of Decree with the Force of Law No. 54 of 1957 [hereinafter: "Decree"] concerning the proclamation of an agreement between the government of the Hungarian People's Republic and the Government of the Federation of Soviet Socialist Republics, signed in Budapest on 27 May 1957 [hereinafter: "Agreement"]. The Agreement pertains to the situation of Soviet troops temporarily stationed in the territory of the Hungarian People's Republic.

However, based on Paragraph 21 Section (7) of Law No. 32 of 1989 (Law Concerning the Constitutional Court), the Constitutional Court ex officio determines the following: The minister of defense did not perform the legislative duties authorized by Paragraph 3 of the Decree. This failure to act created an unconstitutional situation in which laws applied on the basis of the consummated Agreement on the one hand, and domestic law on the other became mutually inconsistent. This condition violates the provisions of Paragraph 7 Section (1) of the constitution.

For this reason the Constitutional Court calls upon the minister of defense to perform his legislative duty by 31 March 1991, by initiating the adoption of a high level legal provision with the concurrence of the minister of justice and the foreign minister. The Constitutional Court establishes this requirement in due regard to the weight and significance of the matter at issue.

The Constitutional Court suspends consideration of the complaint filed by Istvan Biro, Jr. pending adoption of the above mentioned legal provision. The complaint raises a constitutional issue.

The Constitutional Court orders publication of this ruling in MAGYAR KOZLONY.

ARGUMENT: I

Complainants contend that pursuant to the Decree, the enforcement of claims for damages caused by Soviet troops are not dealt with in the framework of judicial proceedings, but by the Hungarian-Soviet Joint Commission [hereinafter: "Joint Commission"]. The proceedings of this body are nonjudicial in character. No legal recourse whatsoever is available to challenge the decisions of this organization. This limitation is spelled out in the Joint Commission's rules and regulations.

In the Complainants' view, these provisions of the Decree violate the fundamental rights of Hungarian citizens as guaranteed by the constitution.

Paragraph 57 Section (1) of the constitution provides that every citizen is entitled to the right to have "his rights and duties adjudged by a legally constituted independent and impartial court in a fair and open trial." Section (5) of the same Paragraph provides that "all persons shall be entitled to legal recourse pursuant to law against decisions rendered by courts, state administrative organs, or other authorities which violate a person's rights or just interest."

A procedural order which deviates from these constitutional provisions is also the subject of Attorney Dr. Attila Gyorfı's complaint. His grievance stems from the fact that even though evidentiary proceedings relative to damages caused by withdrawing Soviet troops took place before civil courts, the summary opinions of these courts were not binding with respect to the Joint Commission, and because no legal recourse was available against the determinations of the Joint Commission, Dr. Gyorfı recognized these factors as violations of fundamental rights.

The submission of Istvan Biro, Jr., pertains to his specific case. He also complained about the fact that evidentiary proceedings were conducted before a Hungarian court upon the Joint Commission's request, and pursuant to the rules and regulations of the Joint Commission. The issuance of a "summary opinion" concerning the evidentiary proceedings concludes such court proceedings. Although based on the completed evidentiary proceeding, the capital city court recommended that the complainant be awarded the amount of nonmonetary damages sought, the Joint Commission disregarded the recommendation because it was not bound by the "summary opinion." Lacking an opportunity for legal recourse, Biro received only half the amount the court regarded as fair settlement. The reasoning supportive of the Joint Commission's changed view concerning the fair amount of settlement was not known to Biro.

In Biro's view, his rights were violated by the unconstitutional acts of referring his case to the Joint Commission, and of ruling out an opportunity for legal recourse.

ARGUMENT: II

The Constitutional Court obtained the documentation related to Istvan Biro, Jr.'s tort claim. The court also communicated with the Foreign Ministry, the international division of the Ministry of Justice, and the Joint Commission.

In its response, the Foreign Ministry reported on the circumstances of the Agreement and about the functioning and jurisdiction of the Joint Commission. The Joint Commission was established by virtue of Article 17 of the Agreement. Thereafter, the ministry made mention of limitations with respect to inquiries concerning the constitutionality of international agreements. Specifically, the ministry made reference to Law No. 32 of 1989 concerning the Constitutional Court which prohibited the after-the-fact scrutiny of standards contained in international agreements.

No internationally accepted cause for unilateral challenges to international agreements exists.

The Foreign Ministry was aware of problems stemming from the lack of court jurisdiction and legal recourse relative to complaints involving constitutionality and similar matters.

In essence, the response received from the international division of the Ministry of Justice stated the same. The Ministry of Justice submitted a detailed comparison between rights specified in Paragraph 57 Section (1) of the constitution and similar principles in foreign law. Based on the Law concerning the Constitutional Court and in a manner similar to the Foreign Ministry, the Ministry of Justice found no authority for the after-the-fact constitutional review of international agreements.

The Ministry of Justice indicated that in cases involving differences between domestic law and an already consummated international agreement, international law required the adjustment of domestic law so that it conformed with the international agreement. This also applies to Decree with the Force of Law No. 27 of 1982. It established procedural requirements relative to international agreements. The provisions of this Decree must be observed, and consistency between international agreements and domestic law must be established accordingly. The Justice Ministry's response also made the point that essentially, these safeguards were also spelled out in Paragraph 7 Section (1) of the constitution. It provides that "the legal system of the Hungarian Republic shall accept the generally recognized rules of international law, and shall ensure consistency between legal obligations agreed to under international law, and domestic law."

As far as challenging the international agreement was concerned, the Ministry of Justice explained that a theoretical possibility for such action existed only if "the agreement violated one of the mandatory rules (ius cogens) of general international law at the time it was consummated." No ius cogens can be applied to Hungary at this time, therefore no grounds for challenging the international agreement exist. Thus, the theoretically possible solution cannot be applied.

No realistic opportunity to amend the Agreement exists because the agreement will lose force following the completion of Soviet troop withdrawal. This will occur on 30 May 1991.

Relative to the constitutional complaints, but also as a matter of principle, the Ministry of Justice response points to the provisions of Paragraph 7 Section (1) of the Civil Code of Laws. These provisions have been in force at the time the Agreement was consummated, and continue to be in force today. This provision states that although the enforcement of rights is the function of courts, deviations from this rule could be provided for by law. Accordingly, in the opinion of the Ministry of Justice, the Agreement cannot be viewed as unconstitutional.

Yet, relative to this specific case and similar cases, the international division of the Ministry of Justice recognized a need to settle these issues because of the problems that may flow from these issues.

The response received from the chairman of the Joint Commission's Hungarian branch provided a detailed analysis of Istvan Biro, Jr.'s case and the actions taken thus far. The chairman claimed that the order and practice that evolved thus far within the Joint Commission were consistent with law, in the context of both the Decree, and a legal aid agreement proclaimed by Decree with the Force of Law No. 22 of 1958. The chairman also believed that the establishment and operation of the Joint Commission were based on legal authority granted by the provisions of Paragraph 7 Section (1) of the Civil Code of Laws. In his view, consistency with Hungarian legal provisions was established by the fact that Paragraph 1 of Ministry of Justice Decree No. 7 of 17 August 1958 provided an opportunity for evidentiary proceedings to be conducted by Hungarian courts in response to requests made by the Joint Commission, and by the requirement that "summary opinions," which concluded such evidentiary proceedings, become part of the Joint Commission's proceedings.

The response also indicated that even though the Agreement failed to address the issue of finality, Paragraph 16 of the Joint Commission's Operating Rules provided as follows: "The determinations of the committee are final. Such determinations shall not be subject to appeal, and shall not be the subjects of petitions filed in courts." The operating rules provided a narrow opportunity for making changes if new circumstances or new proof came to light.

Relative to the case of Istvan Biro, Jr. the response claimed that the Joint Commission indemnified the complainant to the extent possible.

This response nevertheless conveys the sense of tension which attends indemnification cases.

ARGUMENT: III

Regarding the after-the-fact constitutional review of international agreements, and relative to the possibility of challenging or amending the Agreement, the Constitutional Court shares the legal view expressed by the Foreign Ministry, the Ministry of Justice, and the Joint Commission. Indeed, the Constitutional Court has no authority to perform an after-the-fact review of the Agreement. For this reason, based on the complaints submitted, the Constitutional Court examined only the provisions of domestic law now in force, i.e., the Decree. This Decree constitutes law and therefore is not exempt from under constitutional scrutiny. The Constitutional Court compared the provisions of the Decree with constitutional provisions now in force.

Thus, the examination extended to comparing Paragraph 2 Article 9.(1), Article 10.(1), and Article 17 of the Decree on the one hand, with Paragraph 57 Sections (1) and (5) and Paragraph 7 Section (1) of the constitution. The above mentioned provisions of the Decree are the subjects of the complaints.

Paragraph 2 Article 9.(1) of the Decree states that "The government of the Federation of the Soviet Socialist Republics shall indemnify the government of the Hungarian People's Republic for damages caused to the Hungarian state as a result of actions taken or failures to act by Soviet military units or by individual persons within such units, and shall indemnify Hungarian organs, citizens, or foreign citizens within the territory of the Hungarian People's Republic for damages caused by Soviet military units, or military personnel belonging to such units in the course of performing their service related duties.

"In all cases, the extent of indemnification shall be determined by the Joint Commission established pursuant to Article 17 of this Agreement. Such determinations shall be based on claims filed, in due regard to provisions of Hungarian law."

Article 10.(1) provides essentially the same order for the settlement of claims arising from damages caused by Hungarian state organs to the property of Soviet troops or to Soviet persons.

Article 17 specifies that "A Hungarian-Soviet Joint Commission shall be formed to resolve issues arising from the interpretation and application of the present

Agreement, and from planned supplementary agreements. Each party to the Agreement shall designate three representatives to serve on the commission.

"The Joint Commission shall operate in a manner consistent with rules adopted by the Joint Commission."

In and of itself, Paragraph 2 Section 9.(1) of the Decree delegates to the Joint Commission only those cases which involve damages caused by members of Soviet troops in the course of performing their official duties. The Joint Commission determines the extent of indemnification under this delegated authority. It also stipulates that the Joint Commission render its decisions in due regard to Hungarian law.

The problem stems from the fact that procedural rules applicable to such cases were not established as part of the Decree. Instead, such rules were provided in the framework of the "Operating Rules of the Hungarian-Soviet Joint Commission and of the rules and regulations of its secretariat."

Even though these rules declared that the Joint Commission "must not render determinations contrary to the manner in which laws are applied by Hungarian courts," additional provisions contained in these rules significantly deviated from Hungarian procedural rules.

According to Paragraph 12 the Joint Commission shall generally render its decisions in closed meetings. Members of the Joint Commission are not judges, they need not necessarily have an education in the field of law, and their "determinations ... are final. Such determinations shall not be subject to appeal, and shall not be the subjects of petitions filed in courts" (Paragraph 16). "Relative to damage claims amounting to less than 100,000 forints, the chairmen of the two branches may render determinations without convening the Joint Commission" (Paragraph 19). Nevertheless, such determinations constitute determinations made by the Joint Commission. These rules conflict with the provisions of Paragraph 57 Sections (1) and (5) of the constitution. They also violate the prohibition from discrimination contained in Paragraph 70/A of the constitution, because based on the procedural rule a practice evolved which exceeded the provisions contained in the Decree. Thus, the Joint Commission determines not only the extent to which indemnification is to be provided. It also determines the legal basis of claims and conducts related evidentiary proceedings. In other words, the practice that evolved on the basis of the Joint Commission's Rules and Regulations diverted typical civil law cases to the nonjudicial Joint Commission based on the sole criterion of who caused and who claimed damages. This kind of exception was not authorized by Paragraph 7 Section (1) of the Civil Code of Laws. An appropriate interpretation of Paragraph 7 of the Civil Code of Laws indicates that the possible deviation applies only to individual classes of cases. Within the excepted class of cases the procedure must always be applied uniformly with respect to everyone. For this reason, the Constitutional Court refuses to accept the ministries' position with respect to Paragraph 7 Section 1 of the Civil Code of Laws.

In examining the legal character of the rules and regulations, the Constitutional Court determined that the rules and regulations were not clearly Hungarian in character, nor did they constitute law. Nor could the rules and regulations be regarded as other legal means available to state management, as provided for in the Decree with the Force of Law No. 11 of 1957 concerning legislation.

Thus, based on the above, even though the rules and regulations violate constitutional provisions, Paragraph 1 Section (b) of the Law Concerning the Constitutional Court does not authorize the Constitutional Court to take controlling action after-the-fact or to annul the provisions of the rules and regulations.

Although the jurisdictional reach of the Constitutional Court permits a review of the Decree as to constitutionality, it is the court's judgment that the unconstitutional legal application described earlier was not based directly on the Decree. This is so, because fundamentally, the Decree regulates interstate relations. It does not rule out the possibility of framing a Hungarian law to govern the relationship between the Hungarian state and persons who suffered damages, in a manner consistent with the constitution in force and without violating the international Agreement. The Hungarian state is a party to the international agreement.

In due regard to the above, the Constitutional Court rejects complaints which seek a declaration of the unconstitutionality, and the annulment of the Decree and of the rules and regulations.

At the same time, based on Paragraph 1 Section (c) of the law concerning the Constitutional Court, the Constitutional Court makes an ex officio determination. Based on the above, the Constitutional Court finds that an unconstitutional situation evolved in the course of settling claims for damages caused by Soviet troops. The unconstitutional situation resulted from the failure to ensure consistency between the international agreement and domestic law. Such consistency was not provided for by Decree with the Force of Law No. 22 of 1958 and by Ministry of Justice Decree No. 7 of 17 August 1958. These decrees provided for the proclamation and implementation of the mutual legal aid agreement between the Government of the Hungarian People's Republic and the Government of the Federation of Soviet Socialist Republics signed in Budapest on 24 April 1958. The Agreement pertains to matters related to the temporary stationing of Soviet troops within the territory of the Hungarian People's Republic. Ministry of Justice Decree No. 7 of 17 August 1958 provides discretionary authority to the Joint Commission to request the capital city court to take witness testimony, etc. in the course of evidentiary proceedings. On the other hand, the summary opinion of the court is not binding with respect to the Joint Commission.

Accordingly, the main reason for the existing unconstitutional situation is the lack of an appropriate provision in domestic law. In the judgment of the Constitutional Court, clear responsibility for this situation rests with the minister of defense. This is because the minister of defense failed to perform the legislative duty assigned to him by the provisions of Paragraph 3 of the Decree which proclaimed the Agreement.

For this reason, in its ruling the Constitutional Court calls upon the minister of defense to remedy his past failure to act.

The Constitutional Court holds that as long as a lack of consistency between the already consummated international agreement, and domestic law has violated the fundamental rights of citizens guaranteed by the constitution, the Hungarian state should fulfill its obligations established in Paragraph 7 Section (1) of the constitution. This can be accomplished by establishing internal rules which settle the present situation in a manner consistent with the constitution. The action to be taken should provide a constitutional balance based on the state's acceptance of direct responsibility toward its citizens, without violating the state's obligations agreed to in the framework of the international Agreement. Considering the significance of this matter, the legislative failure to act will have to be remedied by proclaiming a high level legal provision.

ARGUMENT: IV

The following pertains to the specific case of Istvan Biro, Jr. Based on the complaint that he filed and on documents pertaining to the case, the Constitutional Court finds that Istvan Biro, Jr. suffered permanent damage as a result of an accident caused by a Soviet military vehicle on a public road. Biro sought annuity indemnification, compensation for damages and for loss of income, and for nonmonetary damages suffered.

The Joint Commission awarded nonmonetary damages only to the extent of 50 percent of the claim, despite the fact that the capital city court recommended satisfaction of the claim in full. The capital city court conducted the evidentiary proceeding at the Joint Commission's request.

Since Istvan Biro had no available legal recourse against the determination, he tried to remedy his case by unsuccessfully complaining all along. In the end, Biro submitted his complaint to the Constitutional Court immediately after the establishment of the court. The complaint was accepted by the Constitutional Court as one that involved a constitutional issue and was filed in a timely fashion. Regarding the specific constitutional issue presented in the claim, the Constitutional Court believes that the new legal provision to be framed will have an effect on the complaint. For this reason the Constitutional Court decided to abstain from dealing with the merits of the case until promulgation of the new legal provision. This should also mean that it would be appropriate to establish the force of the new legal provision so that it applies to this case.

The deadline for remedying the failure to act is based on Paragraph 49 Section (1) of the law concerning the Constitutional Court. Publication of the Ruling is based on Paragraph 40 of the law concerning the Constitutional Court.

Legislative Intent

91CH0416B Budapest MAGYAR KOZLONY
in Hungarian No 125, 12 Dec 90 pp 2427-2428

[Intent of the legislative proposal concerning the legal status, office, and functions of county commissioners]

[Text]

General Intent

The institution of county commissioners is new in Hungarian public administration. Law No. 65 of 1990 concerning local autonomous governmental bodies (Local Government Law) provides only the basic outline for the legal status of county commissioners and their functioning, and does not rule out the possibility of, and need for further provisions.

In establishing the legal status of county commissioners, one should keep in mind that in describing the basic outline of the functions of county commissioners, the framers of the Local Government Law dealt with both the political and professional elements of public administration. Paragraph 100, Sections (1) and (2) of the Local Government Law state that the county commissioner shall be appointed by the president of the republic based on the prime minister's recommendation. The term of his appointment shall coincide with the mandate of the president of the republic, and the county commissioner shall hold the rank of a titular state secretary. These provisions suggest that the county commissioner is a political appointee who provides direction, and that his position is directly affected by politics.

At the same time, certain public law authorities are missing from the functional scope defined in Paragraph 98 of the Local Government Law. These include analyses to support central decisionmaking, state administrative regulatory functions, and other policymaking functions. The most important components of this functional scope are the oversight of legality of action, the exercise of the official authority of the state administration in the first and second instances, as well as other state administrative and coordinating tasks. Accordingly, the county commissioner's functions possess a fundamental state administrative professional and executive character.

Defining the legal status of county commissioners, and legal conditions needed for the institutional development of the network of offices represented an urgent legislative task ever since the closing of the local elections record. Rules concerning the legal status of the county commissioner have not been finalized. Detailed provisions covering state administrative tasks and authorities will be the subjects of additional legislation.

Section-by-Section Analysis

Paragraph 1

The general and special appointment criteria correspond with the peculiar character of the functions of county commissioners. The general criteria, ability to act, clean record, Hungarian citizenship, present themselves as rather small limitations. In due regard to the character of the functions assigned to the county commissioner, completion of university level studies in the fields of law and political science is an appointment criterion.

Paragraph 2

Incompatibility criteria were established on the basis of legal provisions now in effect, as those apply to state secretaries. (Provisions different from those applicable to state secretaries are required in conjunction with the scope of incompatibility cases and with the termination of employment relationships.) The law must express the fact that being a county commissioner is incompatible with the holding of representative mandates either in the National Assembly or in local autonomous governmental bodies. This criterion is in addition to those applicable to state secretaries. This must be stated because the county commissioner is not an employee of his own office and therefore is not a state administrative employee. Thus, the incompatibility criteria which prohibit National Assembly representatives from becoming state administrative employees (Paragraph 20 Section (5) of the constitution) cannot be applied to county commissioners. However, at the same time, the requirement for separation of powers warrants by all means the application of these incompatibility criteria. Similarly, the function of overseeing the legality of actions taken by autonomous governmental bodies cannot be reconciled with the mandates of representatives serving local autonomous governmental bodies.

Paragraph 3

The term of office of county commissioners coincides with the mandate of the president of the republic (Local Government Law Paragraph 100 Section (1)). Since the Local Government Law establishes the duration of the county commissioner's mandate based on the mandate of the president of the republic, and not on the basis of the five year term specified in Paragraph 29A Section (1) of the constitution, it follows that the term of office of the county commissioner should coincide with the mandate of the president of the republic who appointed him. For this reason, in contrast with rules applicable to state secretaries, discontinuation of the mandate of the president of the Republic for any reason constitutes a special cause for the discontinuation of the mandates of county commissioners.

Paragraph 4

The rank of titular state secretary conveyed by the Local Government Law to county commissioners means that county commissioners must be regarded as titular state secretaries even though they were not appointed as such. This means that county commissioners are entitled to the same rights as others at this level of the state administrative hierarchy. As a result of this provision, it became unnecessary to establish separate rules for the compensation and benefits to which county commissioner's are entitled. Accordingly, it will suffice to express in the framework of this law that relative to matters not provided for in the law concerning the legal status of county commissioners, provisions applicable to state secretaries, or more accurately, to titular state secretaries, must be appropriately applied regarding county commissioners.

Paragraph 5

The office of the county commissioner assists the county commissioner in the performance of his functions. The rapid and successful performance of regulatory activities throughout several counties necessitates the establishment of field offices in each county. The county commissioner is able to perform his functions as a result of the legal, professional and analytical tasks performed by his office. The characteristics which determine the place of the county commissioner's office in the state organizational system are reflected by the functions and authority of the county commissioner, as per Paragraph 98 of the Local Government Law, and by his line relationships. Correspondingly, the office of the county commissioner is funded by the state budget and performs regulatory functions. Its operating expenditures are budgeted in a separate account within the Interior Ministry budget.

Paragraph 6

The activities pursued by the county commissioner and by his office are professional state administrative functions. Expectations of continuity, legality, and professionalism in public administration demand that persons who provide overall directions and whose status is subject to change, be separated from the stable, professional organizational structure. This separation is accomplished as a result of the appointment of the head of the office, the chief of staff for an indefinite period.

It would be appropriate to assign the exercise of the appointing, promoting, and disciplinary authority to an organ independent from the county commissioner, rather than to the county commissioner. Such assignment was not enabled by Paragraph 100 Section (3) of the Local Government Law. These provisions call for the appointment of employees serving at the office by the county commissioner, and view the chief of staff as an employee. Accordingly, based on the law, an opportunity exists only in terms of establishing a requirement for prior concurrence with respect to the appointment and relief of the chief of staff, and regarding disciplinary proceedings against the chief of staff. The proposal assigns the authority of prior concurrence to the minister of the interior.

Paragraph 7

The functions and authority of the county commissioner are tied to the person of the county commissioner. The Local Government Law does not provide for either transferring, or for designating a substitute for the exercise of this authority. This limitation might become the source of a number of practical problems, particularly with respect to the performance of state administrative functions. The continuous performance of state administrative functions must be ensured in the event that the mandate of the county commissioner ceases, or if the county commissioner is impeded for any reason. For this reason, it is appropriate to express in the framework of this law that the chief of staff may substitute for the county commissioner in the performance of his functions.

Paragraph 8

To protect the rights of autonomous governmental bodies, the Local Government Law "limits" the oversight authority of the county commissioner exclusively to the legality of action reflected in judgmental decisions made by autonomous governmental bodies, thus excluding considerations of appropriateness (Paragraph 98 Section (a) of the Local Government Law). On the other hand, this limitation leaves ample room for the examination of the appropriateness, efficiency, etc. of autonomous governmental decisions in the area where decisions are not of a judgmental character. The legal oversight function is part of the state's authority to oversee the legality of action taken by governmental bodies. In order to permit the oversight of the legality of action function to prevail in the framework of the state's legal policy goals, the purpose of the county commissioner's legal oversight function, and the areas exempted from under his legal oversight must be clearly defined. This fact must be stated: The primary purpose of legal oversight is to ensure the legality of the local organizations and of their operations, and to determine consistency between related rules and the law. Legal oversight generally extends to local regulations promulgated and other actions taken by autonomous governmental bodies. Exceptions are situations in which legal provisions require that legal oversight take place in the framework of special proceedings, or assign the legal oversight function under the authority of other divisions (the prosecutor's office, the State Accounting Office, etc.).

Paragraphs 9-11

Within the scope designated by the Local Government Law, the county commissioner must play an active role in the development of public administration, and in formulating a modern functional order in public administration. Legal foundations must be established to permit the county commissioner to cooperate with the interior minister in performing his functions relative to autonomous governmental bodies, which aim for the general development of public administration, and for the training and continued education of public administration professionals. Beyond this, authorities that are indispensable from the standpoint of performing the county commissioner's coordinating role must be established. To accomplish this, the proposal makes the designation of the jurisdiction of centrally directed state administrative organs, and the appointment of the heads of such state administrative organs subject to comment by the county commissioners.

Since the earliest possible appointment of county commissioners, the development of office structures, and the establishment of personnel and material conditions for these offices constitutes an urgent task, the law takes effect on the day it is proclaimed.

The Obligation To Pay

Paragraph 1

The following organizations shall contribute to the state based on their taxed balances: State enterprises, trusts, and unless otherwise provided for in the resolution which established a trust, trust enterprises after state property under their management; corporations established by transforming state property after the business shares (stock) they retained based on Paragraph 23 Section (1) of Law No. 13 of 1989; and further, cooperatives after part of the property accounted for as state property.

Basis of Contribution

Paragraph 2

(1) The amount to be contributed shall be that part of the taxed balance derived pursuant to Section (3), which corresponds with the ratio of state assets and founding capital as shown in the year-end financial statement.

(2) From the standpoint of state property transformed into corporations the total worth of business shares (stock) retained by the corporation shall be regarded as state property.

Taxes shall be observed respectively from the standpoint of taxed balances and amounts transferred.

Extent of Contribution

Paragraph 3

(1) The extent of contribution shall be 25 percent of the proportionate share of the taxed balance (Paragraph 2 Section (1)).

(2) State enterprises transformed into corporations and cooperatives shall contribute amounts which reflect the same percentage of the taxed balance as the percentage ratio of dividends paid to members (stockholders) as owners and the taxed balance, proportionately adjusted to the size of the share owned by the various members (shareholders).

Retaining Contributions

Paragraph 4

(1) Organizations pursuing activities defined in Paragraph 13 Section (1) Subsections (a) and (b) of the Law on Entrepreneurial Profit Taxes and obligated to pay contributions may retain proportionate amounts of contributions from the sales revenues derived from these activities as part of the total sales revenues. (2) Organizations pursuing activities pursuant to Paragraph 13 Section (1) Subsections (a) and (b) of the Law on Entrepreneurial Profit Taxes and obligated to pay contributions may retain proportionate amounts of contributions pursuant to Section (1) which correspond with the percentage of entrepreneurial tax benefits to which they are entitled based on these activities.

(3) The Hungarian Telecommunications Enterprise may retain the contribution payable for purposes of telecommunications development.

Procedural Rules and Rules for Calculating Advance Payments

(3) Contributions after state property shall be made in advance pursuant to the following provisions:

a) Except as provided for in Subsections (b) and (c), state enterprises, trusts and unless otherwise provided for in the resolution which established a trust, trust enterprises which operated during the year preceding the

d) Organizations transformed into corporations and cooperatives obligated to make contributions shall pay advance contributions respectively after the business shares (stock) retained, or after that part of property which is accounted for as state property only if they paid dividends to the owners in the course of the year. At that point the amount of advance contribution payable shall be the same as the amount of the advance dividend paid to the owners, adjusted on the basis of percentage of business share (stock) owned.

e) In the event that an organization breaks up, separates itself, joins or merges with the organization (hereinafter: organizational change), advance payments shall be determined pursuant to the provisions of Subsections (a) and (c), based on the actual mandatory obligation as adjusted on the basis of (divided or combined) data reported to the tax authorities.

Closing Provisions

Paragraph 6

(1) This law takes effect on 1 January 1990. [passage omitted]

(2) The tax rate pursuant to Paragraph 37 Section (1) shall be established on the basis of the total income as reduced by the amounts specified in Paragraphs 34-35 (tax base).

(3) In the course of determining the total income:

a) Income derived from the sale, for profit utilization or transfer of jointly owned property by persons married to each other shall be allocated in equal proportions between the spouses. This provision shall not apply to income derived from an individual venture.

b) In the event that a private person acquires in a single year Paragraph 11-12 income earned in the course of several years of activity, such income may be divided into three parts provided that the income exceeds 50 percent of the private person's previous year's tax base, and further provided that the private person owes no delayed taxes with respect to the income to be divided.

c) Income derived from the transfer of real property may be divided into three parts at most, provided that the private person owes no delayed taxes with respect to this, or part of this income. The income shall not be divided into more parts than the number of full years the private person owned the subject real property.

d) Monthly amounts of state severance pay defined by law and received in conjunction with the termination of a work relationship may be applied only for the number of full months beginning with the termination of the work relationship and ending with the end of the tax year. Such application may be made as long as the total amount of severance pay received has not been accounted for.

(4) In the event that income is divided into parts pursuant to Section (3) Subsections (b)-(c), one third or one half of such income shall be combined with the rest of the combined income earned by the private person in the subject year, and the highest tax rate applicable to that amount must be determined. The tax due on two thirds (half) of the divided income shall be determined by applying this tax rate, and shall be paid together with the tax due on all the income earned in the subject year.

(5) That part of the amount of state severance pay referred to in Section (3) Subsection (d) which was not taken into consideration in the course of determining total income, shall be regarded as income earned in the course of the following tax year. In the event that the number of months not considered in the given tax year exceeds 12, the monthly amounts applicable to the excess months shall be regarded as income earned in the second year.

Paragraph 33

(1) Income shall be regarded as earned income on the day the person receives such income. Non monetary benefits shall be regarded as having been acquired on the day the recipient takes possession, amounts credited shall be

(2) If the previous calendar year's wages, fees, employer funded sick or child care fees based on a work relationship are paid by 15 January of the following year, such payments shall be regarded as income earned on the last day of the previous calendar year. In applying this provision the day of transfer or mailing shall be regarded as the day payment was made.

(3) Life insurance premiums and pension contributions made by a private person's employer for the benefit of the private person create a tax obligation only at the time when the private person acquires a dispositional right over the insurance or pension amount, provided that such amounts are not otherwise tax exempt (Paragraph 7 Section (2) Subsection 48).

(4) Relative to pecuniary value received by a private person in the form of free of charge securities (Paragraph 3 Subsection (e)), the private person shall incur a record keeping obligation when acquiring such securities, and shall incur other tax obligations when the pecuniary interest in such securities is sold, except as provided for in Sections (5)-(6), or if the private person fails to verify within 15 days from date of receipt of notice from the tax authorities that he possesses such pecuniary value, or that he has the right to such value, as well as in cases in which the cooperative (the issuer) ceases to exist without a legal successor.

(5) In due regard to the provisions of Section (6), an exception from under the rules provided in Section (4) shall be constituted when a member leaving the cooperative, or a member of a cooperative that has been discontinued without legal successor receives like-kind pecuniary value in exchange for his free of charge securities, and if such member invests such like-kind pecuniary value in an unchanged form in his own venture as an individual entrepreneur. Another exception to the Section (4) rules is a situation in which a private person receives a share of the assets (business share, stock, etc.) from the legal successor to the issuing firm in exchange for his free of charge securities, as long as the private person does not withdraw his share of assets from the newly transformed firm, or until any one of the conditions enumerated in Section (4) occurs.

If such amounts exceed the total income of the private person, deductions shall be made from the total income of subsequent years until such time that the entire amount has been deducted.

(3) One thousand forints per month, per child, or per handicapped child pursuant to Subsection (c) may be deducted from the private person's total income, provided that the private person raises a child in his own household, beginning with the month the child was born until the month in which the child reaches the age of six, or if he raises at least:

e) Amounts expended in a given year on installment payments for the purchase of stock or business shares in the framework of the Employee Participation Program.

(2) As far as a private person indicates in his tax return that a delayed tax is due (Paragraph 44 Section (1)), the maximum deductible amount under the provisions of Section (1) shall be based on the percentage designated in Section (1) of the total income, as offset by the proportion of the total income reflected by the delayed taxes. In the event that the private person received state severance pay as a result of termination of employment, the full amount of such severance pay may be deducted from the total income defined in Section (1). The latter provision shall not be applied if a private person used the method specified in Paragraph 32 Section (3) Subsection (d), and in Section (5) to compute his total income.

(3) A private person shall have an obligation to declare, determine and pay taxes after the expended pecuniary value defined in Section (1) if that pecuniary value is sold, or if the private person fails to verify within 15 days from date of receipt of notice from the tax authorities that he possesses such pecuniary value, or that he has a right to such value, as well as in cases in which the firm (venture) ceases to exist without a legal successor. The same procedure shall also apply in cases where the private person permanently leaves the territory of the Hungarian Republic.

(4) If the private person incurs the obligations defined in Section (3):

a) Within two years following the last day of the year in which the acquisition took place, taxes payable for the year in which the pecuniary value was acquired shall be settled on the basis of filing an income tax return verified by the private person.

Advance taxes shall not be deducted from income provided exclusively in kind, or in the form of movable property, but advance tax deductions for such in-kind payment or for payment in the form of movable property shall be made by the payor on the subsequent occasion when payment is made in the form of money and the payor deducts advance tax payments from the amount of money paid.

(3) Advance taxes due after income derived from a work relationship shall be calculated in due regard to the time proportionate share of amounts provided for in Paragraph 34 Section (1) Subsections (a)-(d), (f) and (g), and to employee tax benefits (Paragraph 39/A). In the event that the private person demands that the payor effect payment directly for a purpose which reduces the total income pursuant to the provisions of Paragraph 34 Section (1) Subsections (a) and (b), the payor shall not deduct advance tax payments from such amounts.

Paragraph 46

(1) The amount to be deducted by employers (Paragraph 67 Subsection 31) from the payment of regular income derived from work relationships shall be calculated as follows: One-twelfth of the tax due on a given monthly income multiplied by 12, and reduced by the amount of employee tax benefits (Paragraph 39/A).

(2) Advance tax payments on irregularly paid income derived from a work relationship shall be deducted by the employer by multiplying the regular income received during the previous month by 12, then adding the amount of irregular income. Taxes on the resultant amount shall be calculated according to the general rules (Paragraph 37 Section (1)). Thereafter the tax amount derived must be reduced by the amount representing the monthly tax multiplied by 12 which the private person would have paid otherwise.

(3) If a private person derives Section (1) income from a work relationship in addition to receiving pension benefit payments, the employer shall calculate and deduct advance taxes as follows: Multiply the combined total amount of the private person's monthly pension benefit payment and his regular income in a given month by 12. Calculate the taxes based on the resultant amount pursuant to Paragraph 37 Section (1). Deduct from the resultant figure the taxes due after the pension, but in no event less than the tax to be paid after the amount specified in Paragraph 38 Section (1) Subsection (b). The amount thus derived shall be divided by 12.

(4) In the event that the private person, in addition to receiving retirement benefits, receives irregular income from a work relationship, the employer shall calculate and deduct advance taxes as follows: The combined amount of the monthly retirement benefit and the previous month's regular income shall be multiplied by 12. Add the irregular income to that amount. No advance taxes shall be deducted if the resultant amount does not exceed the extent defined in Paragraph 38 Section (1) Subsection (b). But if the resultant amount exceeds the amount specified in Paragraph 38 Section (1) Subsection (b), the tax calculated based on the provisions of Paragraph 37 Section (1) shall be reduced by the tax amount due on the combined amount of the monthly retirement benefit and the monthly regular income multiplied by 12, or by the tax due on the amount specified in Paragraph 38 Section (1), if the latter amounts to more.

Paragraph 47

(1) In the event that the employer pays regular income derived from a work relationship in several installments within a month, the amount of advance taxes shall be calculated and deducted on the basis of the actual monthly income. The employer may retain advance taxes proportionate to the payment made in the course of the months for settlement at the end of the month.

(2) If regular income is derived simultaneously from several work relationships, advance taxes shall be calculated and deducted by assuming that the private person acquired such income on a monthly basis. (4) In the event that employment is terminated in the course of a given month, the original employer shall deduct the advance tax pursuant to general rules applicable to income derived from employment. If the private person establishes a new work relationship within the same month, the new employer shall calculate the advance tax payments on the basis of regular income derived from all work relationships. This amount shall be reduced, however, by the advance tax already deducted by the original employer.

Paragraph 48

(1) Unless otherwise provided for in this Act, the payor shall deduct advance tax payments from income payable, by calculating the deduction pursuant to the provisions of Paragraph 37 Section (1) and by adding to the resultant amount the amount specified as the upper limit of the zero tax rate in Paragraph 37 Section (1). Regarding income referred to in Paragraph 38 Section (1), and regarding private persons referred to in Paragraph 38 Section (3), the advance tax deduction shall be calculated on the basis of Paragraph 37 Section (1) and Paragraph 38 Section (4), and by adding to the resultant amount the amount of retirement benefits received. In the event that the payor pays income to the private person several times in the course of a year, he shall add up the amounts of income paid to the same private person in the course of the year, and shall add the amount thus derived to the amount specified as the upper limit of the zero tax rate in Paragraph 37 Section (1) and to the retirement benefits. The difference between the amount of taxes thus derived, and the advance tax payments already deducted shall be deducted as advance tax payments.

The applicable price surcharges also are included in the sales price.

For taxpayers who, as executors of construction operations employing their own materials for customers who are entities of the socialized sector, provide an accounting of the utilization of these materials at cost-estimate prices that are lower than the actual retail prices, and who submit invoices for the differentials between these prices, the amount subject to the turnover tax does not include the price differentials accepted by the customer.
